Canadian Stamp News Cover Contest Won by Peace Arch Stamp Club

The June Federated Philatelist announced Canadian Stamp News’ third annual cover contest, There were 18 entries in the club category, and nearly a thousand votes were cast. The winner was the Peace Arch Stamp Club, with a cover marking the 100th birthday of member Alfred Bennett, who is believed to be Canada’s oldest active philatelist. Bennett was born on June 1, 1920. I quote from the announcement, written by Jessie Robitaille of Canadian Stamp News, as published in the Peace Arch Stamp Society newsletter:

“Our very first meeting was held in White Rock, B.C., April 1986, and Alfred Bennett was one of the signatories at that meeting,” reads a statement issued by club President Terry Leishman, Vice-President Steve Melanson and Secretary Doreen Jardine Leishman, who were all involved in producing the cover.

“We decided to do something very special for this gentleman, and we started with many ideas in January to commemorate his 100th birthday. We had several meetings and came up with this commemorative cover with his own personalized stamps, the very best we could do for this amazing philatelist.”

When his club members surprised Bennett with his cover and a large framed stamp featuring his face, he told them that of all the honours he received in his lifetime, this one was the best.

“Several of us stayed up until midnight local time watching the results,” said Melanson and the Leishmans, adding they are “absolutely thrilled for Alfred,” who’s a Second World War veteran and former London, England, police officer.

Throughout his 30-year policing career, Bennett was occasionally tasked with guarding 10 Downing St., headquarters of the U.K. government, where he met former prime minister Winston Churchill “many times,” his fellow club members said.

“Alfred rarely misses a meeting and is still actively selling and buying and also lives independently. He has been collecting for almost 90 years.”

PIPEX Planning a Hybrid Show

PIPEX is scheduled for May 7-9. The plan is to have an in-person show as usual, but augmented by online exhibits and virtual presentations and meetings. All exhibits will be on the floor; mounting them virtually is optional.

If coronavirus restrictions preclude an in-person show, PIPEX plans a virtual show similar to SEAPEX 2020. But most likely without dealers; we don’t know yet how to have dealers effectively in a virtual show!

The U. S. Stamp Society has postponed its meetings at PIPEX until 2022.

Exhibits are being accepted now; the prospectus and entry form are at http://www.pipexstampshow.org.

Anchorage Philatelic Society makes Jon Van Zyle an Honorary Member

Jon Van Zyle is the ninth honorary member recognized by the Anchorage Philatelic Society. He has been providing the artwork for the club’s show covers, first day of issue covers, and special event covers for almost forty years. The first was in 1982, and is shown below. Not only that: he donates his artwork originals to the club, which in turn donates them to the Anchorage Museum. He also signs all the covers.

Stamp Club Activity in our Region

Yes, the pandemic drags on, and the surge in Covid-19 infections necessitates more stringent precautions. Though “stay home” orders give us more time to work on our collections, they dampen club activity as well as stamp shows.

Some clubs have pretty much shut down, and are waiting until restrictions are removed before they resume club meetings.

Other clubs maintain their in-person meetings, with distancing, reduced attendance, and other precautions. Among these clubs are Edmonton, Eagle, Idaho, and Portland.

Still other clubs are meeting by Zoom. Zoom meetings are not the same as in-person meetings, but have some advantages as well as drawbacks. Regina, SK, the Strait Stamp Society, Anchorage, and the Salem Stamp Society are among clubs doing Zoom meetings.

Here are some of the things I learned from club newsletters and websites, and emails from those good citizens who replied to my request for news:

Victoria has several active clusters of collectors. Besides the Vancouver Island Philatelic Society, which has had some Zoom club meetings, there is the Monterey Stamp Club, limited by Covid to the residents of the Monterrey Center, and the Muffin Break Club, which has been having weekly Zoom meetings and publishes its own newsletter. In a presentation to the September 24 Zoom VIPS meeting, Gray Scrimgeour gave a talk on US Foreign Airmail Route 2 between Seattle and Victoria; the slides can be viewed on the website www.vicstamps.com/vips.

The Greater Eastside Stamp Society in Seattle has been having Zoom meetings. Among the fun things: a presentation on bicycles on stamps, and a “birthday challenge” initiated by Carol Edholm: find covers postmarked on your birthday, with extra points if postmarked on the day you were born! Other clubs could have fun with this too.

The Strait Stamp Society has a Zoom meeting the first Wednesday of every month. At its December 3 meeting, the show-and-tell will be for philatelic items associated with the letter “R.” They are working their way through the alphabet. Their November-December Newsletter featured a new 6.30-franc Liechtenstein stamp that was embroidered with thread made from recycled plastic bottles. This is the second embroidered stamp I know; Switzerland issued a 5-franc embroidered stamp a few years ago. (The value of the Swiss stamp has risen considerably; maybe the Liechtenstein stamp, with a print run of 40,000, would be a good investment.)

One of the few clubs with in-person meetings is the Eagle Stamp and Postcard Club in Eagle Idaho. After eight months with no meetings, they held a November meeting with eight members. They were glad to get together – with Covid precautions – but are not planning more such meetings as the pandemic worsens.

The Tri-Cities Stamp Club (Pasco, Kennewick, and Richland) would like to start Zoom meetings, and is looking for members who can run one. However, they also have monthly programs (slide shows) on their website. Check them out at https://www.tri-citiesstampclub.org. They have about an eight-month backlog of programs in readiness!

The Pacific Northwest chapter of the BNAPS (British North America, but you knew that) has monthly Zoom meetings, with program. On December 16, Gray Scrimgeour will present “History of the Nicola Similkameen.”

The newsletter of the Cents-Pence Study Group of the BNAPS caught my eye with an article “Death through the Letter Box” by Ron Majors. No, it’s not an Agatha Christie murder mystery; it is about early Canadian mourning covers!

The Edmonton Stamp Club has canceled in-person meetings in November and December, but is planning one for January 25. With stringent Covid precautions. Their newsletter is serializing – the November issue contained Part 14 – the history of the Panama Canal.

The Oregon Stamp Society in Portland continued two in-person meetings a month until early November, but has now stopped.

The Salem Stamp Society has resumed monthly meetings, by Zoom. The first meeting was catch-up, show-and-tell. Their second was a joint meeting with the Sacramento, CA club and the Greater Eugene Stamp Society. For that meeting, George Struble gave a presentation on “The 1920 Frankfurt-Basel Airmail Service – What a Fiasco!” (continued on page 10)

Willamette Valley Stamp Show to be Virtual

The March shows by the Greater Eugene Stamp Society and the Salem Stamp Society have been canceled. But the exhibiting arm of both, the Willamette Valley Stamp Show, will continue as a virtual show. The exhibits will be judged. Stamp collectors in the Pacific Northwest region are invited to send their exhibits of up to six frames – virtually, of course. You can find the prospectus and entry form on the show’s website www.salemstampsociety.org/WVExh1.html

SEAPEX Report

The SEAPEX show in September had to be virtual, as the virus restrictions prevented an in-person show. Under the direction of its new director Carol Edholm, the SEAPEX organizing crew did superb, groundbreaking work; Jack Congrove would be proud! (continued on page 11)
Peterson Award to Tony Wawrukiewicz

In August, our own Tony Wawrukiewicz received the Charles J. Peterson Philatelic Literature Lifetime Achievement Award. Tony has done fantastic work here in the Pacific Northwest, especially in raising PIPEX to become one of the nation’s premier stamp shows. Nationally, his work on philatelic publications has earned him enormous respect and has been reference material for many philatelic scholars. So this honor is richly deserved. The following is reprinted from the American Philatelic Research Library Philatelic Literature Review, third quarter 2020.

Charles “Charlie” Peterson (1933-2009) worked with the International Federation of Philately (FIP) and the American Philatelic Society to turn the idea of a competitive philatelic literature exhibition into a reality – virtually inventing the rulebooks for how to exhibit and judge philatelic literature. He singlehandedly lifted the bar for quality in philatelic publications. Charlie’s legacy is that of “integrity, scholarship, and the unrelenting desire to advance the collective body of [philatelic] knowledge,” qualities that were recognized in his lifetime with the highest accolades offered in philately - admission to the Roll of Distinguished Philatelists and the APS John N. Luff Award (which he was awarded twice).

The Charles J. Peterson Award was established two years after Peterson’s passing in 2009, and is awarded by the American Philatelic Research Library every year to a person who embodies the outstanding legacy that Charlie left behind. Peterson award winners are notable for their dedicated work to further philatelic knowledge through philatelic literature.

Tony’s citation reads:

Anthony S. Wawrukiewicz (born 1943 in Santa Ana, CA) is a 50-year member of the APS. He is the winner of multiple awards, including the 2002 Luff Award for Distinguished Philatelic Research, the 1998 American Philatelic Congress Diane D. Boehret Award, the 1999 U.S. Philatelic Classics Society The Elliott Perry Cup, the 2001 U.S. Philatelic Classics Society The Stanley Ashbrook Cup, and was inducted into the APS Writer’s Unit Hall of Fame in 2013.

Tony has written a monthly column for Linn’s Stamp News on modern U.S. postal history since 2004, and since late 2003 has been (continued on page 9)
Generic Post Cards
by Lisa Foster

These vintage comic “Generic Post Cards” were popular in the 1970s through 2000s. As the Oregon post card is undated, unused, notes no amount of required postage, and has no photographs, the exact date of publication is difficult to determine.

Similar post cards were distributed by various local publishers, from multiple states. The check boxes contained references to local tourist attractions and stereotypes of the area. For example, the Seattle Generic Post Card choices included, “Waited for the rain to stop”, “Saw the Sun (unofficial sighting)”, and “Got high on the Space Needle”.

The bar code was not identifiable with a current barcode reader, which indicated the number was not listed in the data base. That may have been because Universal Product Codes (UPC) contain 12-digit numbers, and the post card only has 11 digits. The same bar code was listed on Generic Post Cards for Texas, Provincetown, Silicon Valley, Black Hills, Monterey Peninsula and Louisiana. So, one can deduce that the bar code was part of the humor of what was considered “Generic” at the time.

Another clue may be the boasting of the card as “Another André original”. Although other picture postcards were found with this statement, I was unable to identify this particular André. It may have been an attempt at further humor referencing the postcards printed by artist and photojournalist André Kertész in his Paris basement darkroom in the 1920’s.

Northwest Cinderellas

by Larry Crain

What is a Cinderella? In general, it is a stamp that is not a postage stamp. However, most Cinderella collectors agree that it is not a revenue. This covers a lot and making subsets is not easy.

Nick Follansbee, primarily a poster stamp collector, explains that originally Cinderellas were “any stamp-sized adhesive not found in the standard postage stamp catalogues.” This would include 19th Century locals and tax-paid revenues.

Many Cinderellas are to raise money or to raise awareness to be able to raise money. Christmas seals and Boys’ Town stamps are examples. Others reward customers. S&H Green Stamps and Gold Bond stamps are Cinderellas that reward customers. They are stamps that have some intrinsic value.

Many Cinderellas promote and advertise. They are to gain repeat customers (reward without value) or attract new customers.

Cinderellas might include issues of non-existent countries -- fantasies.

Some Cinderellas are local posts. The most well know of these are Rattlesnake Island and Lundy Island.

Businesses (right) Seagrams’ 1939 series

Other Cinderellas, that also have a purpose to promote and advertise, do so for events. The Northwest Federation of Stamp Clubs has done this. Political campaigns have done this.

Many Cinderellas are fun or make fun. Spoofs I call them. Mad Magazine has done some. These also include the designs John Coulthard did for the Western Stamp Collector. They are real post offices and many collectors added them to covers. Good luck, though. I’m not sure Hellgate, WA had a post office. Lookingglass, OR and Hellgate, MT are DPOs.
Others play off of real stamps such at the Mrs. Stewart’s Bluing sheet.

Of course, Cinderellas do more than one of the functions I have listed. The Mrs. Stewart’s sheet shows this. Whatever, Cinderellas are fun. I have relied on Walter Schmidt (editor of Poster Stamp Bulletin), Joe Thomas (dealer and auctioneer) and eBay for information and illustrations.

I don’t collect Cinderellas, but I have found that I had several which were adjuncts to my collecting interests or on covers

Here are further selections of Cinderellas from the nine areas of the Federation. I am only showing them. I know little about them.

Alaska

Note: The McGreeley Express is in a specialized listing of locals.
Oregon

Saskatchewan

Washington

Yukon

Note: The Yukon Airways is a semi-official airmail of Canada.

In preparation for this article I went to ebay and searched for Cinderellas for each of the nine regions of the Federation and found over 100 items. Now most are gone but new ones are listed. Over half of the illustrations here are from ebay. This site shows that the collecting area is very active. There is much to collect! I also got advice from Nick Follansbee.

In trying to decide what was and was not a Cinderella, I found myself agreeing with another storybook character. I’m sure Humpty Dumpty in Alice’s Wonderland would say: Cinderella means just what one chooses it to mean — neither more nor less.

For philatelists, there are two sides to Cinderellas. Some might consider them junk. That is not true. Some might consider them fun stuff. That is true. What this indicates is that maybe, as Follansbee suggests, “Cinderella [is] a term which has outlived its usefulness,” but there is no replacement now. Whichever, I think, as an area for collecting, it has not yet reached its peak.

SEAPEX Report

(continued from page 4) Exhibits were mounted by Bill Seymour, who also did all of the website work. His protocol for exhibits can be called the gold standard; there are frame views, showing an exhibit frame just as on the floor. Each page can be viewed, and navigation between frames, or from one page to the next (or previous) is easy. The most impressive feature, which I have not seen in any other virtual stamp shows, is that if you click on a philatelic item – stamp or cover – you get to zoom in on that item!

Meetings and presentations were by Zoom, and were well managed. One, avidly watched by a bunch of us, was by Bill Seymour explaining how to mount exhibits the way he does.

What’s more: you can still see them! Just go to seapexshow.org/SEAPEX2020/

There was an attempt to provide access to dealers, too. I understand that was not very satisfactory.

Overall, very well done!

George Struble
